Hi Natalie,

I have received the following email, which should be fairly explanatory. I was thinking eNews would probably be the best place for it or maybe building news if deemed newsworthy enough?

Who would be the best person in NSW to send something like this too?

Cheers

Greg

Subject: MEDIA RELEASE: WorkCover launches online premium estimator

Hi Greg,

WorkCover has developed an online premium estimator which will enable employers to estimate their workers compensation premium.

It's based on a similar concept to the Motor Accident Authority's Green Slip Calculator and is located on the WorkCover NSW website.

We've prepared a media release announcing the launch of the estimator and thought you might like to circulate it to your members and/or run something in your newsletter. Any support to help spread the word to your members would be appreciated.

Some general facts on the Premium Estimator are that it will make it easier for start-ups, businesses looking to diversify or those looking to expand, to check their workers compensation premiums.

It will also enable businesses to plan for the future by testing what happens to their workers compensation premiums if they add or change business activities, change staffing levels or have a claim.

Businesses will be able to identify their WorkCover Industry Classification – the industry that their business is allocated for workers compensation premium calculation purposes. This will help them to better understand their workers compensation premiums, while assuring them that they are properly classified.

For further information, please see the attached media release.

Cheers,
